TORK BERALD, WHILE DAY, LEEKE 18.

It will be within your Lordship's recollection that Mr. Clay-ton was informed by Sir Henry Bujwer, before the treaty of 1859 was signed, that Rustan was de jure and le foto a British possession; and Mr. Clayton has on various occasions since, in conversation with me, stated that he considered Rustan asmach B British possession as Jamaica or any other British West In-dia Island

OPINIONS OP THE FRENCH PRESS.

[From La Presse, May 30.]

The seriousness of Mr. Pierce's resolution will not especially one. The United States have put their hand upon Central America. It is a far more serious infraction of the Clayton-Eulwer treaty than the doubtful infraction of which England is accused by the United States. Now that Maker's government is recognized, there is no doubt hat numerous volunteers will leave New York and the United States to join and strengthen him. It is the beginning of the annexation.

[From La Patrie, May 31.]
If the United States recognise the government of which valker is the soul, they inaugurate by that single fact owards Central America a policy of annexation which, monopolizes all the roads leading from the Atlantic to the actic, including the Isthmus of Panama.

This question, as can be seen, is of the greatest im-portance. Let us hope that it will in due time be the sub-act of serious investigation.

[From the Journal des Débats, May 31.] relations between England and the United States more and more a dark aspect. Lies are ex d between the ministers of the two countries. Mr. ton, Minister from England, has affirmed that Mr. Crampton, Minister from England, has affirmed that Mr. Clayton, the author of the treaty in relation to Central America, had positively recognized the sovereignty o England over the island of Ruatan. In the Senate of the Counstance, and declared that the English Minister must have dreamed it. Mr. Clayton has been supported by another Senator, Mr. Crampton had declared that, on the contrary, Mr. Crampton had declared that there has never been question to recognize the sovereignty of England on that point. In presence of those assertions, entirely contradictory, there is no opinion to be given.

Another very serious subject of dissent is preparing between the two governments. It is said that the administration of the United Estates intend to recognize the government of Walker, in Nicaragua, although that sountry has an official representative near the United States. This representative has already protested against that the intention.

We perceive that this news has created a great sensa-tion in England, and that the relations between the two governments appear to be quite alarming.

[From the Independance Belge, May 31.]

To recognize Walker is to proclaim the annexation of all the small American republics which separate the Atlantic from the Pacific. At a given moment the United States would be the sovereign and absolute master of the great continental road which, since the discovery of California and the developement of the riches of Australia, has taken an immense importance for the rapid intercourse of Europe with Eastern Asia and Malaisia. The Bulwer-Clayton treaty—that work of long and laborious negotiations, which was made in order to prevent monopoly and all kind of preponderance, either from England or the United States—should be torn to pieces by a cosp d'eclat. There should not be any more questions to discuss in regard to the dispositions of that convention, or to invoke arbitration: the convention itself should not exist any longer, and the question, placed upon the ground of international law and of free passage through certain great national roads of the world, should interest not only England, but all Europe.

[From La Gazette de France, June 1.]

great national roads of the world, should interest not only beginnd, but all Europe.

From La Gazette de France, June 1.]

If President Pierce receives from Congress the approphation of his conduct, what will England, France and Russia do? A declaration of war to the United States is a big affair, which every one has to fear, not in the point of view of war, but in that of commerce.

The transactions between Europe and America have become so numerous and so active, that it is easy to foresee all the consequences of a rupture. One cannot think without fear of the consequences of such an event, if it had sprung up during the war with Russia, when we had to demand from America gold and breadstuffs to make up for the deficiencies of our crops and of our treasuries.

[From the same journal, June 3.]

Contrary to what could be expected, the English journals seem to have made their mourning (faire leur deud) of the recognizing of Walker, and are not disposed to complicate by this new wrong those which constitute already the ground of the quarrel between England and the United States.

Perhaps they do not pretend to have the right to profesting aims a measure undoubtedly conforming with the principles which the American Union has always professed and practised, with more or loss opportunity, towards like foreign governments de facto, whatver might have been their origin. Perhaps, also, they undorstand that the steps taken by Mr. Pierce and his Cabinet can greatly facilitate the Central American question, in leaving the best part (le beau rôle) to England.

The Sound Dues Question.

[From the London Shipping Gazette, June 3.]

At last there is a chance that the question of the Danish Sound dues will be brought under the consideration of Parliament. The Chancellor of the Exchequer gave notice, last night, that on Friday next he should move for a select committee to inquire into the operation of the Sound dress, and to consider in what degree they are detrimental to the commerce of the country. Forewarned by the experience of the present session in regard to the proposed repeal of the local shipping dues, we trust that all who are capable of proving how greatly our commerce and navigation are taxed and interrupted by the Danish tolls will come forward with their evidence, and satisfy assonly practical experience can, the minds of those mem bers of the House of Commons who may form the committee, that it is a grievous injustice to subject the shipping of this country to a tax which the State exacting i has no other right to levy than a permissive right from the Powers who tolerate it.

But the Chancellor of the Exchequer should enlarge his motion, and include in the preposed inquiry the Hanoveverian Stade as well as the Canish Sound dues; and we will undertake to say that zbundant evidence can be produced to prove that both tolls have, from time immemorial, been so highly "detrimental to the commerce and ghipping of this country." that it would be but a meagre atonement for the wrongs inflicted that both should be abolished, when the treaties under which they are at present levied have expired.

As we presume no gentleman interested in the Anglo-Banish loan will be nominated or would consent to serve on the proposed committee, we are content to leave the matter in the hands of the members who may compose it if they will but fairly put the question to themselves as to whether the Stade as well as the Sound dues are taxes which ought to be levied on British shipping, after the promises held out on the repeal of the Navigation l

The Threatened War Between Spain and Mexico.

[From a Madrid letter of May 28.]

The government was determined to proceed with the greatest energy in the Mexican affair. At a Cabinet Council, held the day before, it was resolved to send to the Guif of Mexico, independently of the naval forces detached from Cuba, two ships of the line, one frigate and one corvette, which are to be placed under the command of a distinguished maval officer. One of those ships is now ready to put to sea, and the government has ordered that the other should be fitted out with all possible despatch.

distinguished naval officer. One of those ships is now ready to put to sea, and the government has ordered that the other should be fitted out with all possible despatch.

[From the London Times, June 3.]

Spain has remained unusually tranquil during the great battle of the nations. Time was when this great monarchy overshadowed all other lands, and even where her iron legions had not made their way the fear of her name provailed. We are not about to write in a spirit of bitterness against Spaniards and Spanish things, for we know well that Spain, which has been well nigh for two centuries and more in an effete condition, contains within her limits the elements of a giorous future. One honor, at least, cannot be denied to her. From the Pyrenees to the Mediterrancan, and from the castorn waters which wash her coast to the great Atlantic, with the single exception of a mighty craig which is rather annexed to her territory than part of it, Spain is free from the profanation of foreign occupation. We do not pause to inquire how this result was brought about during the last war, suffice it to say the fact is so. Nor is there reason to doubt of the military genius and warlike qualities of the people, when Spanish air has been once purified from the taint of priestly supersition and courtly intrigue. The upper classes, indeed, are effete and worn out. The sanger and runs in feeble though limpid streams through the tim arteries of a stunted and degenerate race. Beneath these in social position are men who want but opportunity to make their names illustrious in civil policy and in commercial enterprise. The great heart of Spain, however, beats strongest in the stout breast of the Spanish peasant In the mountains of Biscay, in the vast plains of Leon and Castile, and amid the sierras of Andalusia, the scene on many a knightly achievement in the old days of Morisco warfare, are to be found the stalwart children of the soil, from whose loins will spring the men who are destined to restore this great country to her place am intelligence reached us that Spain had just declared war against another country; and greater still when it was told us that the antagonist summoned by her to the combat was—Mexico.

A war of Spain against Mexico! It seems rather a dream to amuse the imagination than a serious incident in the sober domain of reality. We are carried back to the times of the conqueror Cortez and of his iron band—to the glories of the Indian kings and to their awful over-throw. The events of this conflict are familiar to us all in the animated recital of the great American historian, Prescott; but they are things of another day. A Spanish invasion of Mexico cannot, surely, be connected with the progress of modern affairs. We miss all the incidents of grave reality in such a dream. It is intelligible enough that a band of stern warriors, armed with weapons novel to the untaught Indian, and mounted on animals which seemed to him as monsters from another world, should fill his breast with panic and confusion. Let us suppose a band of green warriors dropped on our planet from the moon, mounted on hippogriffs, and using weapons which would be to our Lancaster guns what the Lancaster gun is to the yew bow of Sherwood Forest; let us suppose these fearful strangers to touch the carth suddenly in Kent or the Weald of Sussex, muttering strange incantations, and demanding of us instant reverence for some unknown power, with death as the alternative. We should send for our great warriors and our great priests—for the Earl of Lucan and the Bishop of Bangor; but what if they failed us in the hour of need? London might soon share the fate of the capital of ancient Mexico. Such is the idea of Spanish conquest in Southern America in bygone days; but what similarity is there between those distant times and our own? The Mexico of the Indian was not the Mexico of the ladicaste, but the Mexico of the Indian was not the Mexico of the ladicaste, but the Mexico of the Indian has no the Mexico of the maintenance of our dear summary which could compete, wi

Antilles—whic Istill owns the dominion of the Spanish flag. For defence, she would have with her the sympathies of Europe, for attack she would stand alone. The only result of her efforts would be to cover the Spanish anne in those distant regions with new confusion and disgrace, and to pave the way for foreign aggression in Cuba.

The Spaniard who admits into his dreams the wild fancy of regaining on the mainland of America that which, once lost, was lost to him forever, reckons without the presence of an antagonist with whom he at least is unable to cope. Not a month would pass from the day that the first of the half dozen ships which constitute the Spanish navy lad driven into Vera Cruz the brig which constitutes the navy of Mexico, when swiftly and sharply the government at Washington would intervene in the discussion, and remove its solution to the bay of Havana. Far mightier interests are at stake just now in the West than any in which Spain bears part. Let her stand aside, if she be wise, and leave the arena clear to others who may be driven to descend into it, however much against the level. may be driven to descend into it, however much against their will.

may be driven to descend into it, however much against their will.

Failure of a French Millionaire.

[Paris, June 1, Correspondence of London Express.]

M. Place, whose failure has caused so much consternation, was a partner of the firm of Noel & Place. Before becoming connected with the Credit Mobilier, he had a private fortune amounting to 300,000fr. But of late years he has been living far beyond his means. He kept up the establishment of a country gentleman of large fortune at a clasteau near Melun, where he had one of the best stocked sporting manors in the neighborhood of Paris. This place cost him not less than 100,000fr. a year. It is true that the expenditure served to elevate him to that financial greatness from which he has so suddenly failen. M. M. de Morny and Fould, and even Prince Jerome Bonaparte honored his battues with their presence. Five hundred pheasants were sometimes slaughtered in a day at this rus in urbe, and in return for the sport the princes of finance let M. Place into many a good thing. The discovery of his embarrassments, to the circumstances of which I have alluded in a former letter, took piace after he had actually left Paris for Constantinople, there to establish a Credit Mobilier. He had reached Masseilles, and was on the point of embarking, when he received a telegraphic despatch from the house of Percire begging him to return to Paris immediately. At the same time, by way of wholesome precaution, a second despatch was sent, on proper authority, to the Prefect of the Bouches-du-Rhone, desiring him to take care that the ci-devant millionaire did not leave the country. The lathows of M. Place is that he had got as far as Lyons on his way back to Faris, but that he was prevented by the inundations from continuing his journey. The principal creditors are MM. Percire, 5,000,000f.; M. Ernest Andre, 3,000,000f.; M. Greening, 1,500,000f., and M. d'Eachthal, 700,000f. Of course I do not precisely guarantee these figures.

Financial News.

Lordon Money Marker, Tursbar Evening, June 3.—The quotation of gold at Paris is about 5 per mille promium (according to the last tariff), which, at the English Mint price of £3 Irs. 103,6d, per counce for standard gold, gives an exchange of 25.29 ½; and, the exchange at Paris on London at short being 25.35, it follows that gold is about 0.22 per cent dearer in London than in Paris.

The course of exchange at New York on London for bills at 60 days' sight is 110 per cent; and, the par of exchange between England and America being 109 23-40 per cent in favor of England; affit, after making allowance for charges of transport and difference of interest, the present rate leaves a small profit on the importation of gold from the United States.

The English funds have been steady to-day, but the market was flat towards the close. Consols for money, which left off last evening at 94½ a 94½, opened at 94½ a 94½, and subsequently advanced to 94½ a 94½, a which they remained up to near the official termination of business, when they experienced a decline of an eighth. For the 10th of July the last regular price was 96 a 95½, and later transactions took place at a further slight reaction. The American question still continues to excite attention, and to check the buoyancy that would otherwise be looked for. To-morrow is settling day in consols; and, as the amount of stock on the market does not seem to be so great as on the last occasion, the public having purchased steadily in anticipation of the effect to be produced in the appearance of prices by the deduction of the dividend, the arrangements in connection with it have passed off thus far without any material diminution of themones. The scrip of the new loan left off at 1½ to 2 premium.

The demand for money, both at the Bank and in the discount market, although not excessive, is more active than was expected. The payments falling due to-morrow (the 4th of the month) are not thought to ness.

The final quotations of the French Three per Cents on the Paris Bourse this evening were 74f. 10c. for money, and 74f. 95c. for the new account at the end of the month, showing a further decline of about an eighth. The liquidation just completed has been heavy, and between 13 and 14 per cent has been paid to carry forward, "trehases of rentes. The recent failure of M-Pince has cause, I some little uneasiness, and tended to embarrass the settles, "ent. but the general confidence has not apparently been sh. ik. en. It is stated that M. The telegraphic accounts from the south of France this afternoon report a further rise in corn in consequence of the inundations.

A. F. AND R. MAXWELL'S CIRGULAR.

Liverpool, June 3, 1856.

The arrivals from Ireland and coastwise, during the past week, have been light. From foreign ports we have received 9,189 quarters wheat, 976 quarters beans, 20,534 quarters Indian corn, 9,597 sacks and 6,814 barrels flour. The exports in the same time include 2,076 quarters wheat, 19,751 quarters Indian corn, 303 loads oatmeal, 1,365 sacks and 2,175 bbls. flour. There has been only a quiet trade here since Tuesday last, and where business has been done in wheat and flour buyers have had the advantage. Outs have been in better demand, at rather better prices. Indian corn has also met with a fair sale, at 28s. to 28s. 6d. per quarter for prime yellow and mixed, and 29s. for white, and yesterday rather more money was asked. The weather has been harsh and cold, but to-day it is again fine and seasonable.

At this day's market there was a good attendance of town and country buyers, and a brisk consumptive demand was experienced for wheat and flour, at the prices of this day week, the decline of Friday having generally recovered. Oats, with a good demand, brought an advance of 1d. per 46ibs.; best Iriah mealing bringing 3s. 7d. per 46ibs. Oatmeal, howover, remained without change in value. Barley, beans and poas met with a slow retail sale at late rates. Indian corn was in fair request, but as there was a good deal offering, holders were unable to establish any improvement, therefore we repeat our late quotations of 28s. to 28s. 6d. per quarter for mixed and yellow, and 28s. 6d. to 30s. for white.

RICHARDSON, SPENCE AND CO. S CIRCULAR.

Liverpool.—Evening, June 3.

The weather continues very fine, but with a firmer trade at Mark Iane yesterday, we have to-day a good consumptive inquiry for all articles of breadstuffs. Wheat sold to a fair extent at an advance of 2d. a 3d. per bushel on inferior quali per lb.

Sugar to-day was again in good demand, and extreme rates have been paid. Nothing done in molasses. Of coffee, 470 bags Costa Rica realized 57s. 6d. a 62s. 6d. per cwt. Tea without alteration; common Congou 9d. per lb. The transactions in rice have been at rather irregular rates. 50 tons St. Domingo logwood sold at £5 7s. 6d. per ton.

BIGLAND, ATHYA AND CO.

LIVERPOOL (Evening), June 3.—In breadstuffs, a better tone in the market, and last week's prices fully maintained. Provisions—Beef dull, and without change, bacon in good demand, at full prices; lard in good demand at 55s. a 56s., but very little offering. Tallow unchanged. Rosin has advanced, and 4s. 6d. is now asked for common.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MONEY MARKET.

TURNDAY, June 17-6 P. M.
The first board opened this morning heavy. Lower prices ruled, and there was a general disposition to sell. All the leading railroad stocks were freely offered at ower prices, and the bears put out contracts liberally. Nicaragua Transit declined 1/4 per cent; Delaware and Hudson, 2; Cumberland, 1/4; New York Central Railroad Michigan Southern, M.; New York Central Rainfoad, M.; Erie Railroad, M.; but closed at yesterday's prices; Michigan Southern, M.; Galena and Chicago, M.; Hudson Railroad, M.; Milwaukie and Mississippi, M. New York Central 6's advanced M. per cent. There was a larger business than usual in railroad bonds this morning, and quite a variety of the different classes were sold. These securities are gradually but steadily improving in market value, and as the current rates of interest are reduced by the greater supply of money, railroad bonds must com-mand higher prices.

sudden and violent reaction. The news by the Arago became known between the boards, and the bears construed it more favorably than anticipated, and purchased largely. The most important rise was in Erie. With very large sales, the improvement reached nearly one per cent; Delaware and Hudson advanced 1 per cent; New York Central Railroad, 1; Reading, 1; Cleveland an Toledo, %; Galena and Chicago, %; Michigan Southern Railroad, 114. After the board this advance was sustained; but many operators availed themselves of the opportunity to put out short contracts. While the bears were panic struck and purchased largely, outsiders, who have heretofore kept out of the market, entered as sellers. It is undoubtedly the impression of those who are now putting out short contracts that the worst is yet to come. The reaction to-day was not justified by the complexion of our European advices. We have not yet seen the effect, upon the public mind of Great Britain, of Mr. Crampton's dismissal; and when the fact that not only the British Minister, but the three Consuls, have been sent home, reaches England, there will be, beyond all doubt, an excitement throughout the length and breadth of Great Britain such as has not been known for many years. A week or two will bring us the whole programme.

The steamship Arago, at this port from Southampto and Havre, has $45,000 in specie on board as freight. The steamship Niagara, from Boston for Liverpool tomorrow, will take out about $500,000 in specie.

A meeting of the stockholders of the late Knickerbock er Bank is called by the committees for Wednesday evening, the 18th inst., at the Broadway House.

We notice a circular of Mr. Albert H. Nicolay, offering a portion of the stock of the Shawneetown Coal Company at a safe and profitable investment. It is stated that this company is in the hands of gentlemen whose references here are of the first respectability. The general use of coal for economical purposes, wherever it can be conve nicutly obtained, renders it a substantial element of wealth which is every day becoming more and more im-portant, and if, as is supposed, the lower valley of the Mis-sissippi river, New Orleans and the Gulf of Mexico can be supplied from these mines with an abundance of good coal the success of this enterprise, if well managed, can hardly be considered doubtful.

The Assistant Treasurer reports to-day as follows:

and Havre, brings us four days later intelligence from England and the Continent. The advices do not differ materially from those received by the previous steamer. Quotations for consuls show a decline of ¼ per cent. Money was in better demand, but the supply was ample, and the rates of interest tended towards lower points. The political differences existing between Great Britain and the United States had a depressing influence upon financial affairs and upon the stock market generally. The stock market of London was affected in the same way as ours. With plenty of money, at low rates of interest, prices were depressed, and no speculative feeling pre-vailed. In cotton and breadstuffs there had been no change. The markets were dull. This steamer does no bring us any later bank returns, but the reports of the different markets show that the previous favorable returns were without effect on prices for stock securities or our staple products. Stock Exchange.
